

What a relief

Contributed by Michael
Saturday, 23 June 2007

What a relief.... My final semester is over. I finished up on Thursday night with a presentation with my team mate Nathan, and officially handing in all our documents. The assignment was basically a project management assignment, so our documents were just typical project documentation, including Project Concept Brief, Project Plan, with Gantt charts, issues registers and functional specifications and so on.

I have to admit, that during this course I always said 'it's just tafe' but in the end I did feel a bit of pressure to have all the documentation complete in time.

So now my weekends are free again, I can start spending more time with Emma again :)